The Starting Point Matters

During the past year, we have noted in every publication and presentation we give that The Community Foundation has identified the need for early childhood education as one of Boulder County's most important challenges. It was not so long ago that Forbes listed Boulder as the most educated community in the country. But remember, most of us were educated elsewhere. What are we doing to grow our own future, when we rank 48 out of 50 states in funding for K-12 and higher education, and the disparity between low-income student achievement and middle-to-high income student achievement is growing? Sadly we know that part of why this is happening is that children aren't prepared properly to learn before they enter Kindergarten. All of Boulder County's children need a chance to start out well.

An awareness campaign to educate our community about Boulder County's achievement gap is kicking off on March 4th and 5th, with two events for our local community. Keynote Speaker Bill Millett will share anecdotes and insights from his 25+ years of leadership and economic development experience. Millett's long resume includes positions in the business, government and nonprofit sectors, from Executive Director of two South Carolina Regional Councils of Government to Senior Vice President in charge of Economic Development for the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce. His gift is animated storytelling, and his passion is extolling the benefits of early childhood education, as a means to address the achievement gap.

We need your help making sure the local community is well represented at the Longmont Lunch at LifeBridge Education Center on March 4th at 11:30am (tickets $20/person) and the Boulder Breakfast at Spice of Life Event Center on March 5th at 7:30am (tickets $15/person). Will you be a Table Captain for one or both sessions? Table Captains purchase a table of eight seats and invite seven others to join them. You may either sponsor a whole table or ask the people you invite to pay you for their seat.

Please contact me if you can help or if you want to know more about The Community Foundation's Early Childhood Education Initiative.

Regards,
Josie Heath, President

Exceeding Goals: 2009 Results

In one of the toughest years to raise a dollar, The Community Foundation exceeded its 2009 fundraising goal of $5 million, raising $5.6 million and granting $4.8 million to non-profit organizations in Boulder County and beyond. Total assets under management are approximately $34 million.

The campaign to raise $4 million in four years for the Foundation's unrestricted grant making fund, The Community Trust, is also making good progress having raised $858,000 in 2009-approximately $45,000 more than in 2008. The Community Trust Initiative's early success is allowing The Community Foundation to not only increase grant-making, but also start working on preventing one of Boulder County's thorniest problems: the educational achievement gap. Two key goals for The Community Foundation this year are to raise awareness about the achievement gap in our schools and to explore ways to sustainably fund preschool for at-risk kids.

TCF Helps Memorialize Two Community Icons

The Community Foundation is proud to have played a small role in memorializing two community icons in recent months: John Breaux and Gilbert F. White.

John Breaux, 57, was a beloved member of the Louisville community, fondly remembered for his random acts of kindness, including greeting everyone and riding around on his bicycle to help pick up trash. The last weekend in January, one year after he was struck by a car while riding his bike, the City of Louisville dedicated a life-size bronze statue of Breaux in downtown Louisville. The statue, created by sculptor Dawn Record, captures Breaux straddling his bike, with a beaming smile and his habitual wave. The Community Foundation worked with Breaux's family and the city of Louisville to help make the statue a reality.

More than three years after the death of Gilbert F. White, the plan to build an 18-foot-tall memorial and flood-level marker along Boulder Creek is almost fully funded. In addition to being a celebrated geographer, Dr. White raised awareness both nationally and locally about the hazards people assume when living in and near flood zones. He is credited with helping to shape all of our community's flood safety practices and helping to reform the urban corridor of Boulder Creek. Friends and family have been working since his death to raise the cost of the marker, through a memorial fund at The Community Foundation.

John Breaux's brother, David Bright, hugs DawnRecord, sculptor, at the dedication of the John Breaux Memorial on January 30th.
